

Montessori Global Education and the Chartered College of Teaching to strengthen professional practice in early childhood education

From today, members of the Montessori Global Education Network mentoring programme can join the Chartered College of Teaching at no additional cost, giving access to the Early Childhood Hub and its high-quality professional development resources for early years practitioners.

This will sit alongside Montessori-inspired resources from the Montessori Global Education Network and the structured reflective support from Montessori Mentoring Mindset, giving early years educators a wealth of research-informed content and opportunities to share and grow.

The continuing partnership will empower educators and embed professionalism at the heart of early years education, strengthening knowledge and practice to enhance learning experiences for young people. Together, these initiatives provide educators with enriched opportunities to share knowledge, reflect on practice and access thoughtfully designed resources that strengthen learner-centred education worldwide.

Professor Dame Alison Peacock, CEO of the Chartered College of Teaching, said:

"I am delighted we will be building on a long-standing, purposeful partnership with Montessori Global Education. Early years practitioners are critical to educational outcomes and life chances, and both our organisations are committed to providing high quality professional learning and recognition for colleagues in the early years sector."

Karen Chetwynd, CEO of Montessori Global Education, said:

"We are proud to strengthen our partnership with the Chartered College of Teaching, reinforcing our shared commitment to advancing professional excellence in early years education. Through this close collaboration, we empower practitioners to grow, innovate, and lead with confidence in their communities. Together, we continue to champion high-quality, inclusive education that nurtures every learner's potential and shapes the future of teaching."

Montessori Global Education and the Chartered College of Teaching are reaffirming our shared commitment to early childhood education.

Notes for Editors:

About the Chartered College of Teaching

The Chartered College of Teaching is the professional body for teachers. Our mission is to empower a knowledgeable and respected teaching profession.

Through membership and accreditation, we are working to develop effective, evidence-informed teachers and leaders, improve the quality of professional learning, establish more robust career pathways for teachers, and improve job satisfaction within the teaching profession.

The Early Childhood Hub plays an essential role in strengthening the expertise of early years practitioners. Developed by the Chartered College of Teaching, it brings together research, resources, and practitioner insights, focusing on the pedagogy and practice of early childhood education, providing a platform for reflective practice, knowledge exchange, and access to case studies, expert perspectives and research-informed content from across the Early Years sector.

About Montessori Global Education

The Montessori Global Education Network will continue to provide Montessori-inspired resources and foster a global community of educators eager to share insights and advance learner-centred practice. Alongside this, Montessori Mentoring Mindset offers structured, reflective support for educators, leaders and experienced practitioners, creating a collaborative environment to challenge ideas, deepen professional practice and engage with carefully curated resources. Rooted in over 70 years of experience in child-centred education, it helps ensure that mentoring becomes a meaningful, collaborative and sustained professional journey.
